Car Rental Excess Insurance

▶ WHAT IS AN EXCESS?

If you make a claim on your motor insurance policy you will normally be responsible for a portion of the repair costs - this is called an excess. It is no different if you hire a car. You are likely to be covered under the rental company's insurance but still be made responsible for the excess if the car is damaged. This can on average be between £1000 - £2000.

▶ WHAT IS EXCESS INSURANCE?

Most car rental companies will offer you excess insurance for complete protection. This can be a considerable extra cost to your rental. We can offer this cover at a competitive premium so you can avoid pressurised sales tactics at the rental desk, knowing you already have the protection.
